F. Arrison's Baby and Home Burned Up

Six-Month Old Girl is Burned to a Crisp in Bed—Mother Went for Water and Turning Saw Her Home in a Blaze

Fierce Flames Stop Mother's Frantic Efforts to Save Her Baby

A very sad fatality and fire took place Saturday morning, whereby Mr. and Mrs. Frank Arrison lost their baby girl, Margaret Ruby, and their farm house, together with the entire contents.

Mr. Arrison brought all that remains of the little girl to Geo. W. Evans' undertaking establishment Tuesday, from where the funeral took place the same afternoon.

Mr. Arrison said that at the time

Cowboys Coming From All Over Alberta

Gleichen has ever been recognized as the leading cow-town of Alberta, and today, when "The Passing of the Rancher" is talked of, Gleichen still maintains its reputation of being the leading town for big things in the ranching industry. It cannot be gainsaid that in this town more business is transacted by the stockmen than in any other town in all Western Canada. This year has been one of the the fire occurred he was at work building a house on the reserve, his wife and two children being at home. His little boy had seen him put water and salt on some pork to keep it, and thought he would assist in the work—and put all the water at the house into the pork barrel. This necessitated his mother going to the creek for water, and, taking the boy with her, she left the baby in bed. Having obtained the water, she turned homeward to see her home all in flames. She ran for the house as fast as possible, but when she got to the window of the bedroom where the baby lay, the flames were shooting out the window so fiercely that she could not get near it. Running to the other side of the house, she found the same condition, and, severely burned, she was forced to give up any attempt of saving her home and child.

She states she was not absent ten minutes from her home, and as the fire in the kitchen stove was low when she left, cannot account for the fire starting or burning so fiercely in so short a time.

The baby was burned to a crisp, neither arms nor legs being left, and it hardly could be recognized as a human being. It was indeed a sad and terrible sight to look upon. Coroner Rose went out Monday to investigate and issued a certificate of burial.

Mr. and Mrs. Arrison have the most sincere sympathy of the town and district in the death of their little girl and the loss of their home.

TOWN COUNCIL

Only three members of the town council were present at the meeting held last Friday evening, with Mayor Bray occupying the chair. Those present were Councillors Service, Leggatt and McKay. The meeting was a short one, but considerable business was accomplished.

The minutes of the last regular meeting and a special meeting being duly passed, the following motions were duly moved and passed:

Ald. Service and Leggatt—That the secretary be instructed to write to the Deputy Minister of Municipalities regarding straight-term debentures and ask if it will be permissible to alter by-law No. without submitting same to the ratepayers and incurring the expense of advertising.

Grain Marketed So Far 231,637

During the past week there was nearly twice as much grain brought into Gleichen than the previous week, although the wind storm Monday and the snow that night practically stopped hauling, the roads since being in poor condition, but it is expected today the farmers will be coming in pretty strong again. For the week up to yesterday morning 20 cars of wheat had been shipped and four of oats. As there are but few farmers left to thresh now and they will finish this week it is expected grain hauling will now become general. At present Gleichen is well supplied with cars and both the elevator men and farmers are very much pleased with the way the C.P.R. has handled the cars this fall, but it is feared that when cold weather comes it may be more difficult to get them.

Below is the total number of bushels marketed this week, also for the season and the total amount shipped.

very best known for our stockmen as the prices for cattle and horses have been high and the season an ideal one for feed, there being an abundance of good grass, and the weather all that could be desired, and besides there is plenty of prairie hay and green feed for the winter.

$2,000.00 in Prize Money

In view of the success the ranchers have enjoyed, and the fact that their cowboys have now completed their arduous work for the season of rounding-up, dipping, etc., and worked most faithfully, the stockmen have decided to reward the boys by giving them a two days' stampede at Gleichen, when there will be fun galore. A number of Gleichen business men have joined in heartily with the ranchers, farmers and cowboys, and as a result they are offering $2,000.00 in read, the secretary was instructed to write the Des Moines Bridge & Iron Co. and the John Galt Engineering Co. regarding their accounts.

Ald. Leggatt and Service—That the fire chief be instructed to have the hose repaired and also to exchange helmets for hose.

Ald. Leggatt and Service—That the secretary be instructed to purchase 300 feet of Halmet hose from the Gutta Percha Rubber Co. at 80 cents per foot, interest on same not to start until three months from date of delivery of goods. Carried.

Ald. McKay and Leggatt—That the secretary-treasurer be required to furnish bonds to the penal sum of $1500.

Ald. Leggatt and Service—That the secretary-treasurer be instructed to write to Mr. H. M. Wernick that in future before making repairs he must have lamps examined by Chief of Police Roberts.

WORLD'S CHAMPION WILD HORSE RIDER TO TAKE PART IN STAMPEDE

As we go to press a telegram from Innisfail states that Bob Wilson is bringing a bunch of fast riders from that town for the Stampede. Bob Wilson is the World's Champion wild horse rider, having won first prize for wild horse riding as well as 3rd prize for bare-back riding.

Thurs. and Fri. October 23--24

prize money. The date has been set for Thursday and Friday, Oct. 23rd and 24th.

The Gleichen Stampede will hardly be on as large a scale as Calgary had, but in all other respects it will rank every bit as good as a number of the best riders who competed in Calgary have agreed to be in Gleichen on the above dates to sustain their records.

The events are to take place on the Gleichen Agricultural Association grounds, and the main features will be bucking contests; mule and steer riding, roping wild steers and bronchos, fancy trick riding, fancy roping, round-up wagon races, cowboy races, etc., etc.

Those who have the management in hand are endeavoring to have every detail carried out with despatch, and intend to see that there will be no long waits between the events.

Many Cowpunchers to be Here

The cowboys are going in to make it a success, and a number who have been in town the past week have written their friends in many parts of Alberta urging them to be present for the fun. Among many others expected to participate in the Stampede are the following well known cowboys:

Tom Gibson, of Carbon, who won first prize at Calgary as the best Canadian rider.

Charley White, of Bow River, another Calgary prize winner.

Stewart Mitchell of the Pacific Cold Storage ranch, who won first in steer riding at the Gleichen exhibition.

Tom McGree of Hill's ranch, second winner in roping at Bassano, who will ride mules and steers.

Harry Mitchell, from Jack Mor-

Invested In Gleichen and District

General Manager Davis Believes that Farmers Should Reap Full Benefit of Labors by Going in More for Mixed Farming

Chas. Mitchell, president of the Pacific Cold Storage Co., whose headquarters are at Tacoma, Wash., spent a few days in and about Gleichen a week ago. He was accompanied by R. J. Davis, the general manager of the company, who is still here. Both of these gentlemen make regular trips to Gleichen to confer with their local manager, Chris Bartsch.

In a pleasant conversation with the CALL one day last week Mr. Davis kindly gave some few particulars of what the company is doing in and about Gleichen. He said he just came over occasionally to see that the boys were kept busy here as he found the best way to keep them out of mischief was to keep them hard at work. He noticed they all worked well when he was around, but could not be sure of it when away so long but the CALL offered to vouch for them during his absence.

Mr. Davis had been out watching them dip at the Company's ranch and saw over 10,000 head put through the vat, belonging to his company and a few other ranchers. He said it was right that one day the boys put through the dip 4,013 cattle, which he thought was a record.

"Your company is the greatest thing Gleichen can boast of with its packing plant, ranch and buying and selling of all kinds of stock, etc," said the reporter.

"We are pleased to know our efforts are appreciated and no doubt our business has proved beneficial to your town and country. But I may say that I fear that unless we are soon able to declare a dividend our shareholders will not be very well satisfied. We have invested in and about Gleichen fully $300,000 now and up to the present we have not taken away one dollar. As fast as we have made any profits it has been turned back into the business here, but the time is coming when we must satisfy our shareholders with a little cash dividend.

"Yes, since we invested in this district there has been vast changes. I am quite convinced this is not entirely a wheat country, but a good general mixed farming country. You can certainly grow some of the finest wheat the world can produce. However, it is a mistake to sell this grain. It should all be fed and your farmers reap the full value of their labors. Yes, it is gradually coming about that way and let us hope it will continue more rapidly. We have great confidence in the future of this place else we would not invest so heavily here."

Mr. Davis conversed on several other subjects of interest to this district and town in which he appeared quite interested and said he hoped to continue his visits here at regular intervals.

Canadian Championship Wrestling Match

Jack Taylor, who claims to be the heavy weight champion of Canada, but who could not throw Walter Anderson when here, will match Anderson in Gleichen on Oct. 24th. Harry Haynes of Calgary weight 220 pounds will also match Anderson that night. Both bouts will be best two out of three. Anderson is training hard for the events.

Everybody should boost for the Gleichen Stampede.

Next Monday is Thanksgiving day, a public holiday, and all the business places will be closed.

Bucking, Steer and Mule Riding

ten's CX ranch, steer rider.

Chester and Dock Mitchell, P.C. S. riders with records.

Roy Balantyne, a Bassano first prize man in roping.

Scotty Ross, of P. Burn's ranch, who will be much in evidence.

Chris Critchenson, of Vulcan, who has a reputation he will sustain in riding and bucking.

Roy Harold and Joe Bean, of Bassano, who will be in the riding and other events.

Charley Hall, of George Lane's Bar U ranch.

"Shorty" Windiate, broncho buster of High River.

Joe McDonald, well-known in Calgary as the Horse Track expert, will bring others with him.

Sam Livingston of CX ranch.

Ora Demills of Calgary.

Frank Brown of Bar U.

Jack Bean of Two Bar ranch.

Hank Smith, the Circle ranch roping expert.

Plenty of Critters Promised

Walter McHugh has promised to bring in at least six wild bronchos for the roping and bucking contests and several others are making similar promises, while Chris Bartsch, manager of the P.C.S., and Jack Manahan, former of P. Burn's, will supply all the wild steers the boys will require.

Crowd Coming

With fair weather the Gleichen Stampede will be a big success, as from every point there will be visitors. Already some Calgary sports are talking of running a special train down for the occasion.

Wnoopla! Fun! Whoopee! Let her buck! You've been waiting for this. Marvelous feats of horsemanship by the best riders in Western Canada! Wild West Show! You're going to Stampede!

Not at our house—it was at Lady Martin's. It was rather dreadful, but I suppose I have been making myself miserable over nothing, and now Joan is doing the same thing, so you must hold her, too, Mrs. Durand. I don't mind my rings, she added after a momentary pause, so they must have got into my room somehow.

You lost your rings? repeated Mrs. Durand dreamily, oh, that is too bad. I will ask David if he will not give them back to you.

Mother, cried Joan with a quick movement; mother, what are you saying?

Mrs. Durand! stammered Dora; oh Mrs. Durand!

The sick woman seemed hardly to hear their startled cries. She lay back upon her pillows and watched them with the indifference of one knowing that not for long will earthly concerns have anything of trouble or distress for her.

You see, said Joan turning slowly to Dora and making a slow gesture with her outspread hands, you see it was true what I said to you. She turned back to her mother. Ah, then, she said, it is true?

Yes, yes, Mrs. Durand answered faintly. It is true, but I never understood it before—only now that I am dying.

Oh, mother, cried Joan greatly troubled, oh, darling, what are you saying?

Only the truth, child, she answered, and if it were not for you it would be a happy day for me. But Mr. Thorold will take care of you—better—better so. I have only hindered you, where he will help you. We should have left David long ago, but I would not understand. That was very wrong of me, but now Mr. Thorold will take care of you.

Oh, hush, darling, hush, said Joan, much distressed, you must not say such things.

Why not, child, murmured her mother, now let me rest a little for I am very tired.

The two girls crept away, awed and distressed. Is she really so bad? whispered Dora.

I am afraid she is very ill, answered Joan; troubles never come singly, do they? Dora, I want you to promise me something.

What? asked Dora.

Find out Mr. Thorold, and tell him never, never to come here again.

Oh, what nonsense, exclaimed Dora, how foolish you are, Joan.

She scolded Joan and tried to comfort her, and then went away, promising to return in the afternoon.

Hurrying back to the Martins' house for she had already been longer than she had anticipated, she found Wilton Mayne waiting there for her.

As soon as they were alone she astonished and distressed him by bursting into tears, and presently she told him as much as she dared of the dreadful suspicions or more than suspicions that Joan entertained of her father.

To her great surprise she found Wilton much less astonished than she had expected.

Both Thorold and I have had doubts of the man, he said; but for Mrs. Durand and Miss Durand, we should probably have taken some steps before now to bring him to book.

Then what Joan says is true? asked Dora in an awed tone.

One cannot say, he answered, but certainly I am afraid—

But Mr. Thorold, Dora said; it will make no difference—he has known all the time?

Wilton Mayne moved his shoulders and a certain uneasiness appeared in his face.

I do not know what to make of him just at present, he said; he is in a strange wrought-up condition. If he were a girl I should say he was bordering on hysteria. He gives me the impression, somehow, that he is in a mood in which he might do dreadful things.

But Joan is so good and dear and sweet, cried Dora; what does it matter what her old father is? No one can blame her. Oh, Wilton, how glad I am nothing like that can ever come between you and me.

Wilton Mayne laughed tenderly and bent to kiss her. She asked quickly "Oh, what is the matter with your neck? Is it hurt? Why have you bandaged it?"

I have scratched it somehow, he answered, in shaving, I suppose, but I did not notice it at the time. It was so painful that I had to tie it up, but I think the knot has slipped. Do you mind fastening it for me?

In silence she did as he asked. She noticed that the wound was hot and angry, as if inflamed, but she was careful not to say another word about it.

CHAPTER XX.

Thorold Learns the Truth

That Mrs. Durand had been only too correct in her estimate of the seriousness of her own illness soon became painfully obvious to every one. The doctor shook his head gravely and talked vaguely of a weakened constitution that had no power of recuperation, and Joan with a sinking heart noted her mother's almost hourly increasing feebleness. But the dying woman herself seemed well content, her one anxiety the future of Joan. Now on her deathbed she showed, for almost the first time, the care and forethought of a mother in addition to a mother's love.

I have done little for you, Joan, she said, sighing, but at any rate there were always the two of us—now you will be alone.

Oh, darling, Joan protested, there will be the two of us for a long time yet, I hope.

But the dying woman shook her head.

The time has come to me that comes to all, she said. And I am very glad—there is rest—there—only for leaving you, Joan. I should be very happy—Joan, you must send Mr. Thorold to me, I must speak to him.

The doctor had directed that she should be kept as quiet as possible, but on this interview with Thorold she insisted so strongly that Joan dared not oppose her. But there was an interval of a day or two before he came again, and even in that short time Mrs. Durand had become so weak that she was hardly able to speak to him.

Take Joan away, she kept repeating in her hardly audible tones, take Joan away—strange things happen here—take Joan away the very moment I am gone.

But, darling, Joan tried to interpose, but her mother checked her with a quick gesture.

The moment I am gone, she repeated, it would not be safe for Joan to stay here—listen. She drew Joan down close to her, and after a moment's pause in which she gathered her strength for the effort of speaking, she went on: While I am alive, your father is just a little afraid of me—he does not know how much I know, besides we are two. But when I am gone then you will be alone and he will have no fear at all. By a great effort she put out her weak and trembling hand, and caught hold of the skirt of Thorold's coat. Swear to me now that I am dying, she said in a stronger voice, that the moment I am gone you will take her away from this house.

I give you my word—I swear it, said Thorold, much moved. Yes, I will get a special licence, if Joan will consent, and we will be married immediately—if you will consent, Joan.

Yes, yes, cried Mrs. Durand, forgetting her weakness in her excitement and sitting upright in bed. Ah, yes, for then as soon as you are married then you will have a right to protect her.

Thorold turned to Joan and took her hands and kissed them, while her face was as rosy as the dawn.

When I return, he said softly, it will be to make you mine. There shall be nothing between us, nothing, he repeated fiercely; and as it were, he beat down with his eyes the vision of his dead young brother, the memory of their mourning mother that rose before him. No, nothing shall come between us, he said again, and the passion of his tone thrilled her strangely.

He went away then, but it was already late, and he found he was not able to procure the licence that day. But there were other things he could do and other preparation he could make, so that it was past midnight before at last he went to bed to snatch a little sleep, during which it was of his dead brother that he dreamed.

Why should I dream of him now? he asked himself, when I am certain Joan is innocent. I would pledge my life she knows nothing of it. Probably she was within fifty miles of the place that morning. He thought of her and remembered the sweet purity of her face and her clear shining and deep eyes. Innocent? She is innocent, or I am mad, he told himself. Why, I would pledge my life she was not even within fifty miles of the place when poor Frank was shot. Her photograph? Pooh, anyone can have a photograph. No, if she had been there herself, that would be different, but anyone can have a photograph.

He could not help admitting to himself that of late he had entirely neglected that pursuit of his young brother's murderers to which he had pledged himself with such earnestness and resolution, and though this reflection troubled him somewhat, he answered it that new duties and new responsibilities had arisen.

In a quieter mood he breakfasted, and then went out to Knightbridge Street, where he obtained his special licence, though not without a good deal of difficulty and some delay. It was, in fact, luncheon time before it was all settled, and returning to his rooms, he found there a letter waiting him, and reading it, he was plunged again into fresh uncertainties of mind and spirit.

His recognition of Green at the house in Jermyn Gardens had renewed his doubts of him. It seemed the man was playing a double game, and some vague uneasiness had made him write to a friend to inquire if the house on the downs had really been as thoroughly destroyed as he supposed it must have been. It told himself this was rather an unnecessary precaution, since he had himself seen the fire started and had seen Green soak the whole room with oil. But he remembered now how Green had persuaded him to put him down while still only a short distance away from the house. And now here was his friend's reply, in which, to his mingled anger and amazement he read that the house was still in existence with practically no sign of having been damaged by fire at all.

That villain Green has done me somehow, Thorold muttered to himself and his cheeks paled as he wondered what then had become of the body of his brother that he had left there to be consumed by the flames. Yes, Green has evidently done me, for some purpose of his own. I wonder why. I wonder how when the whole place was soaking in oil. Well, I shall have to have a word with Green, that's all.

Anecdotes of Great Men

It is related of Mendelssohn at a public dinner, at which women were present and where he was surrounded by a chorus of aggressive ones clamoring for his autograph, that he allowed himself to be victimized with good nature until finally a fleshy matron of mature years handed him her card. The composer wrote upon the card the music and words from Haydn's 'Creation'; 'And God created great whales. This brought the autograph hunting to an end and Mendelssohn was allowed to go on with his dinner.

The Duke of Wellington had many titles that he never used, but for which once he had to pay dear. He told a man to order dinner for him at a particular hotel and the man did so, mentioning all the duke's titles. Presently the duke came and waited a long time. Is the dinner not coming? he asked. Why don't you bring the dinner? We are waiting, replied the waiter, for the rest of the party. They had prepared dinner for about twenty people.

An American gentleman went recently over the field of Waterloo with a guide, who boasted that he had escorted Gen. Sheridan over the scene of Napoleon's defeat. What did Gen. Sheridan say? asked the American. Oh, nothing. He must have said something. Well, he only said: It was a good place for a fight.

Angelina's Lett

Edwin said Angelina couldn't write a letter without a postscript, and they decided on a wager. Angelina wrote the letter, and would have won the prize, but she spoiled everything by adding to the finale of 'Your loving wife, Angelina,' these words: P.S.—Now, who's won the wager?

LIGHT BREAKS IN

Thoughtful Farmer Lectures About Tea and Coffee

Many people exist in a more or less hazy condition and it often takes years before they realize that tea and coffee are often the cause of the cloudiness, and that there is a simple way to let the light break in.

A worthy farmer had such an experience and tells about it, in a letter. He says:

"For about forty years, I have had indigestion and stomach trouble in various forms. During the last 25 years I would not more than get over one spell of bilious colic until another would be upon me.

"The best doctors I could get and all the medicines I could buy, only gave me temporary relief.

"Change of climate was tried without results. I could not sleep nights, had rheumatism and my heart would palpitate at times so that it seemed it would jump out of my body.

"I came to the conclusion that there was no relief for me and that I was about wound up, when I saw a Postum advertisement. I had always been a coffee drinker, and got an idea from the ad. that maybe coffee was the cause of my trouble." Tea is just as harmful, because it contains caffeine, the same drug found in coffee.

"I began to use Postum instead of coffee and in less than three weeks I felt like a new man. The rheumatism left me, and I have never had a spell of bilious colic since.

"My appetite is good, my digestion never was better and I can do more work than before for 40 years.

SEES A USE IN CRIME

Prisoners Should be Examined by Physicians to Determine Whether Insane of Criminal

That crime is a good thing because it brings us to understand social problems is the startling theory recently advanced by Prof. Benjamin Moore of University College, Liverpool, at the recent annual meeting of the British Medical Association. A special session was held at which the treatment of crime and criminals was discussed.

Perfect laws would show that we were no longer progressing, said Doctor Moore. Old crimes are disappearing and new crimes are arising, and I trust, new crimes will always rise.

Following Doctor Moore's address, Doctor Passmore, superintendent of the Croydon hospital for the insane, urged that when a man who commits a crime is apprehended, someone be appointed to examine the prisoner to ascertain whether he is insane or criminal. After such an examination Doctor Passmore said, the proper treatment could be prescribed.

The Rev. C. B. Simpson, chaplain inspector of prisons, who had been invited to give his conclusions as to the proper treatment of crime, defended the present penal system, especially emphasizing his belief that imprisonment is an effective deterrent to crime. He maintained that the attitude of many who are sent to jail is that of once bitten, twice shy.

Directly contrary to conventional ideas of criminology were the theories of Captain St. John, the honorary secretary of the Penal Reform League. At the harm done to society by all the burglars and all the thieves is a mere bagatelle compared with the harm done by the law courts of England, he declared.

Everybody knows the law courts are making criminals day by day, said Captain St. John. We have to protect ourselves not only from criminals but also from people who deal with criminals.

The experience of a period of imprisonment as a suffragette was given in 'Woman's Social and Political Union.' Miss Allen said:

I have asked suffragists in jail what is the one thing they most craved while in prison. Their reply was: Coffee, vinegar or alcohol. As for myself, during the three weeks I spent in Holloway jail I used to lie awake between 3 and 6 in the morning and say to myself that if I got out I would take green chartreuse, although I had never taken any in my life before. But when I came out I refrained from doing so because I was afraid. There is not enough sunshine and fresh air in prison, and long sentences undoubtedly cause a weakening of the will.

Perhaps the most interesting speaker at the meeting was Prince Peter Kropotkin, the famous Russian scientist and enemy of despotism, who since his escape from St. Peter and St. Paul prison, has spent most of his time in England. The prince is 71 years old and has recently recovered from a severe illness. He was introduced to his audience as an old bird who had spent two years in Russian jails and a further period in French prisons. The prince asserted that imprisonment is not an effective force in deterring crime.

Twenty-four hours of bread and water and a plank bed might be a deterrent to people accustomed to good food, he said, but it is no deterrent to those who sleep under bridges or by the shores of the Thames. Prisons are the universities of crime. We must do something to change our system.

The Busy Man's Creed

I believe in the stuff I am handling out, in the firm I am working for, and in my ability to get results. I believe in working, not weeping, I believe in knocking, and in the pleasure of my job. I believe a man gets what he goes after, that one deed done today is worth two deeds tomorrow, and that no man is down and out until he has lost faith in himself. I believe in today and the work I am doing, in tomorrow and the work I hope to do, and the sure reward the future holds.

I believe in courtesy, in kindness, in generosity, in good cheer, in friendship and in honest competition. I believe there is something doing somewhere for every man ready to do it.

He Knew

Upon the occasion of his first visit to a parishioner a certain Boston divine tried hard to make friends with his host's eight-year-old.

How old are you my son? asked the clergyman benignly.

Eight, was the laconic response. Ah, quite a little man, came patronizingly from the minister. And what are you going to be? he added after a slight pause.

I am going to be nine, said the child, with conviction.

Now look here, wife! You have got to cut out this extravagance! From now on I am going to put down my foot on all unnecessary expenses.

Huh! Your foot will more than cover all expenses!

Only a Trifle

It is true that both your husband and the man who lives next door to you have failed in business?

Yes, but Ned's failure isn't nearly so bad as Mr. Naylor's. He failed for fifty cents on the dollar, while my husband failed for only ten cents on the dollar.

Vast Amount of Sugar Is Used

If all the sugar that is eaten in the course of a year were to be equally divided, every person in the world would have at least twenty pounds, according to an exchange. But besides being used as food, sugar has many industrial uses. It is the cheapest form of chemically pure carbohydrate, and is often used in place of starch, dextrin, or glucose. Sugar is frequently put in compounds for removing and preventing boiler scale. It is used in the manufacture of shoe blacking, transparent soap, copying ink, and ink rollers for printing presses. Certain explosives contain from six to 40 per cent. of it. It is employed in dyeing establishments by tanners for filling leather, and in a large number of other industries. Sugar has a hardening and strengthening action in mortar. The mortar used to build the museum of natural history in Berlin consisted of one part lime, one part sand, and two parts sugar. Even a very small quantity, however, even as little as one quarter of one per cent, exerts a very harmful effect on cement.

Favors Intensive Farming

If farmers were to grow more hay and feed more cattle, as well as go more largely into dairying, it would not be necessary for us to import 7,000,000 pounds of butter from New Zealand, as well as import a large quantity of beef, veal and mutton from Australia, New Zealand and the United States. Canada is sadly in need of adopting better intensive farming methods.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed for ever; condition of the mucous surfaces.

Building the Bagdad Railway

Always there is a different way of doing things. A photograph from the East illustrated the building of the Bagdad Railway shows the laborers carrying the heavy metal sleepers, not on their shoulders, but on the lower part of their backs, where a wide belt helps to sustain the load. Both arms are looped over the burden, holding it securely, and the scheme seems to be a good one.

A pleasant medicine for children is Mother Graves' Worm Expeller, and there is nothing better for driving worms from the system.

How to Read the Moon

Few people can tell at a glance whether the moon is waxing or waning. Here is a whimsical rule to remember by. It is very simple to those who know Latin, and is not difficult for those who do not. The first thing is to notice whether the moon is like a D or a C—that is whether the full semicircular curve is on the right or the left. If the moon shows a D that naturally stands for decreescent, it wanes.

But then comes in the great principle. The moon is always deceitful, and one has to understand the opposite of what the moon says, so that a moon which shows a D is a waxing moon, while a waning moon is like a C.

Those who have no Latin will doubt look to see whether the moon says it is decreasing, in which case they will understand that it is waxing, while a waning moon will deny that it is decreasing.

Among the members of a working gang on a certain railroad was an Irishman who claimed to be very good at figures. The boss, thinking that he would get ahead of Pat, said: Say, Pat, how many shirts can you get out of a yard?

That depends, answered Pat, on whose yard you get into.

POETRY IN THE KITCHEN

Literary Contest in Which Prize is Cask of Burgundy

Knights of the kitchen with literary aspirations are to have an opportunity of indulging their hobby. The Paris publication Le Carnet d'Epicure, which is the official organ of the league of Gourmands, has organized a literary competition for its readers.

Candidates are invited to send in contributions either in prose or verse on some subject of culinary interest, which will be judged on their literary and instructive merits. The prizes will be appropriate, consisting of cases of champagne, liquors, hams, pâtés de foie gras and other dainties.

The best poet will receive a special prize of a cask of fine old Burgundy, and in addition to all these good things there is the increased prestige in their calling which success in the competition will bring the prize winners.

Punishment to Fit the Crime

Not long ago there entered the office of a New York broker a most excited person who, upon ascertaining that the broker was indeed the individual he sought announced in no uncertain terms that he proposed to have satisfaction and justice.

By exercising his clearest methods the broker managed to elicit from his excited caller that on the previous day, as the broker's chauffeur was operating his employer's car, he had, at the corner of Broadway and Fifty-fourth street, nearly run down the complainant's wife, incidentally tearing from her frock a quantity of material.

I am very sorry, indeed, said the broker, and will be glad to do what I can to remedy the matter. Do you expect that I shall get your wife's new frock?

No, I don't snapp the angry husband, brandishing a bit of cloth. What I propose to do is to see that you match this material.

Canadian Peace Centenary

The Canadian Peace Centenary Association is now actively at work organizing Provincial Committees and prosecuting its campaign for the coming celebration of one hundred years of peace between the British Empire and the United States.

E. H. Scammell, the organizing secretary, has just returned from a brief visit to the Maritime Provinces, where the movement has been most cordially received. In New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island strong Provincial Committees are being formed, and there is every indication of a large and moving interest.

Mr. Scammell will visit Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia, with a view to considerably enlarging the membership of the Association, and securing the active co-operation of the Provincial Governments and the leading professional and business men in the four Western provinces. As this celebration will be more than a gathering and demonstration it is desired to secure the assistance of the Educational authorities, Churches, National Societies, Women's Organizations and Labor Unions.

In addition to the Canadian Association there are two others at work, one in the United States and one in Great Britain, both of which have extensive programmes. Sir Edmund Walker, President of the Canadian Association, Mr. Andrew Carnegie, chairman of the American, and Rt. Hon. Earl Grey, late Governor General of Canada, chairman of the British Committee.

The Negro assumed a troubled look and replied:

Oh, so far's physicality goes, I'm all right, but I sure do have ma troubles wit ma wife.

Well, Sam, I'm sorry to hear that. What seems to be the matter?

She thinks money grows on trees, I reckon. All the time she keeps on pecking me for pinch o' change. If it ain't a dollar, it's a half or a quarter she wants.

What on earth does she do with the money?

Lime in Water

In answer to a communication from a lay correspondent, who expresses his belief that the lime in common water has much to do with the bringing on of old age, the Lancet says that while that opinion is common, it is, of course, fatuous. To those people who believe that water is the only possible channel by which lime salts are conveyed to the organism the writer says: Lime salts are inseparable from the common everyday articles of food, so that if hard water were left out of the dietary there would still be secured a large dietary intake of lime salts, which could only be avoided by a hunger strike.

Forty-Sixth Anniversary of Great Ammunition Company

Just forty-six years ago, with the spirit of reconstruction then abroad in the land as a moving influence, began the first successful manufacture of metallic cartridges in the United States.

Some while before, when journeying through the West, Marcellus Hartley had seen a roughly made metallic shell or case made to contain the charge of a gun and had given this idea considerable thought. After the Civil War some ten years later, realizing the importance of metallic cartridges for the new breech loading arms, Mr. Hartley's firm bought up the plants and patents of several unsuccessful factories and on August 9th, 1867, the Union Metallic Cartridge Company was incorporated, half century after the first Remington gun was made at Ilion, N.Y.

In the 50's, skin cartridges and those of parchment and linen holding the powder and bullet and percussion caps had been made, together with a few inferior rim fire cartridges; but now came this new industry more important than all the rest combined.

A mechanical genius was sought and found in the person of Alfred C. Hobbs whose master skill had brought him the $1,000 in gold offered by the English Government for the man who could pick the lock of the bank of England. Nearly all the special machines required were the inventions of Mr. Hobbs.

At first, rim fire cartridges were turned out, but with Col. Berdan's revolutionary invention of the primer, central fire cartridges became the bulk of the output. The far-famed primers developed by the Remington U.M.C. experts have enabled the company's ammunition to go through all climatic conditions and prove absolutely normal in any test.

In 1873 equipment for making shotgun shells was installed and in the early 80's shotgun loads were supplied. As our readers well know the two great companies, the Remington Arms Company and the Union Metallic Cartridge Company, amalgamated several years ago, and since have been doing business as one.

Only a Difference in the Kind

Professor Nichols, a famous physicist, during the recitation of a freshman class in natural philosophy, observed a tall, lanky youth in the rear seat, his body in a recumbent position, his eyes half closed, and his legs extended far about. He was either asleep or about to lose consciousness.

Mr. Ricardo, said the scientist, you may recite.

The freshman opened his eyes slowly. He did not change his somnolent pose.

Mr. Ricardo, what is work?

Everything is work, was the drawing reply.

What? Everything is work?

Yes, sir.

Then I take it you would like the class to believe that this desk is work?

Yes, sir, replied the youth wearily, wood work.

THE WORLD'S WORK DEPENDS ON THE WORLD'S DIGESTION

From the captain of industry to the hod carrier—from milady in the auto to the woman with the scrubbing brush—the accomplishments of every one of us depend absolutely on the accomplishments of our stomachs. Backed by a good digestion, a man can give the best that is in him. When his stomach fails, he becomes a weakling.

To this loss of power no one need submit. Right habits of eating, drinking, sleeping and exercise, aided by Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets, will restore and maintain the full efficiency of the human mind and body.

Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets contain the active principles needed for the digestion of every kind of food. They go to the assistance of the weakened stomach, and enable the sufferer, right from the start, to assimilate and get the benefit of the food eaten. With this assistance, the digestive organs regain their tone, and soon the use of the tablets is no longer necessary.

If your stomach is not working properly, try Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets, 50c., your druggist's. National Drug and Chemical Co., of Canada, Limited, Montreal.

HARD TO GET SOLDIERS

Canadians None Too Willing to Leave Their Jobs for Training at Annual Camps

That Canadians are a war-like people when their home or liberty is threatened or when the Motherland requires assistance, has been amply evidenced by the part taken by Canadian militiamen in the war of 1812-15, in the Fenian Raids of 1866 and 1870, the Red River Rebellion of 1885, the operations on the Nile and throughout the South African war.

But in the piping days of peace, when the department of militia and defence issues its call to the rural regiments to muster for a two weeks' training camp, the amateur soldiers are not so ready to respond to the stirring notes of the bugle. Well the officers of the rural battalions understand the effort necessary in recruiting for camp and they have come to half-dread the annual training period. One of them is authoritatively for the statement that approximately one-half of the members of a rural corps are sons of the farmers, farm hands, and men legitimately recruited in the regimental recruiting area. The other half are men who out of work through circumstance or inclination, and without prospect of immediate employment, are ready to shoulder a rifle and draw the government's good money for two weeks, or four weeks if they can reenlist with another regiment when the first camp breaks up, as some do.

When a recruit takes the oath and signs the muster roll of a company, he swears that he will turn out with the regiment on all occasions during a period of three years. Less than one-quarter of those enlisting every year ever come to camp again. New men have to be found to take their places in the ranks and the regimental drag net is spread out, bringing in a motley catch.

One reason, of course, for lack of enthusiasm is that the pay is small compared with what an average man can earn in almost any line of industry. The system of efficiency pay is another one of contention. If a man cannot shoot he cannot get the extra money. Naturally in the eyes of the militia department this is a wise provision, but it so does it appear to the recruiting officer. The men whom he should have under his command, the steady, industrious citizens or workmen can earn more money at home and not take any chances of not getting it because they cannot shoot.

Shaved Under Difficulties

I had a queer shave last week, said a New York salesman. Business took me for a day to a small country town, way up in the state, where I had the bad luck to fall ill. I was laid up in a little one-horse hotel for four days.

One afternoon I thought a shave would make me feel more respectable, but my hands were so unsteady that I didn't feel up to tackling that myself, so I asked to have a barber sent to my room.

Well, I guess that was the first time on record that anybody'd ever asked for such a thing. After a wait of over two hours a tall, solemn looking man in a frock coat and a silk hat came to my door and said he'd come to shave me. I felt too weak to ask any questions, so I just settled myself in the least uncomfortable chair in the room and told him to go ahead.

You'd better lie down, he said.

Not a bit of it, I answered. I am feeling a lot better and can sit up all right.

But I can't shave you unless you lie down, he insisted.

Rather than have any talk about it I lay down on the bed.

Shut your eyes, was the next order. See here, I said, what's all this for, anyway? Go ahead and shave me, and I'll take care of my eyes. If I lie down and shut my eyes I'll feel as if I were dead.

He chirped up at that.

Yes, make believe you're dead, he said cheerfully. That's just what I want. You see, I am the village undertaker and I am only used to shaving corpses.

She Pinched Them

This story comes from Birmingham. At a certain school in that town, we are told, the mistress, feeling well disposed towards her class during one hot summer's afternoon, sent one of her pupils to buy a pound of plums from a fruit vendor who was shouting his wares outside.

And be sure, Katie, she remarked, as she handed fourpence to the little girl, to pinch one or two of the plums before buying any to see if they are ripe.

Presently Katie returned to the classroom, her face wreathed in smiles and presented the mistress not only with a large bag of plums, but also with the coppers.

For some time she could do nothing but gurggle incoherently. Then, more or less recovering her composure she said: Please, teacher I pinched one or two—you told me, and then when the man wasn't looking I pinched a whole bagful.

The Thaw millions continue to thaw.

The long hill is not in sympathy with the money stringency; in other words, the bank there is not sitting tight.

The trouble with a Mexican war is that after licking Mexico the United States hasn't licked anybody worth licking.

Evidence from Mattea, n. N.Y., indicates that Harry Thaw is a good roads enthusiast.

Mr. Chairman, said the orator, who had already occupied the platform for twenty minutes, amid many interjections from the audience, Mr. Chairman, may I appeal on a point of order? There is really so much desultory conversation going on in parts of the hall that it is impossible for me to hear a word I am saying.

Voice from the back of the hall—Don't be downhearted. You are missing much.

Yes, replied Harry, she is practicing economy, all right, and if your wife is thinking of taking a turn in the same direction you had better get busy and head her off before it is too late.

I don't understand you, Harry, said the acquaintance, with a perplexed expression. I should regard economy as something to commend.

Senator Ashurst, of Arizona, the other day discussed a fellow senator who had been sitting on the political fence with great skill for months. Every one suspects his true position, but no one can prove it. It reminded Ashurst of the incident that followed the kidnapping of Jesse James, the outlaw.

A stranger entered the morgue, said Ashurst, and raising his hat politely, addressed the morgue keeper.

Sir, said he, would you do me a great favor? Will you permit me to see all that is mortal of the honorable Jesse James?

Sure, said the morgue keeper. He walked to the marble slab and pulled out the dead robber. The stranger gazed earnestly. Then, replacing his hat, he started to leave.

One moment, said the morgue keeper. Why did you call the dead man, the honorable Jesse James?

Because, said the stranger, I wasn't quite certain he was dead.

GOVERNMENT ADVERTISING PATRON-

AGE

The Strathmore Standard is quite annoyed that an application for a transfer of license in that town would be advertised in the CALL and not in that paper. It is hardly air, but it seems to be the ways of politicians, and for this reason, up to the hour of going to press, the CALL has never asked for an advertisement from any government. In the last Dominion election the Conservative candidate took up this point very strongly, and stated that when his party came into power they would see that advertising was not given out as patronage and that he believed an advertisement of interest to all should be given publicity, no matter what was the political standing of the newspaper.
 Yet up to date we have not noticed the change. The CALL has ever tried to keep out of politics and has given both parties all the opportunity they asked for to lay their aims and objects before the public, according to our limited space, and so far has not heard any great complaint from either side.

TOWN AND DISTRICT

The ladies of the Methodist church will serve a Thanksgiving dinner in the Opera House annex on Monday evening next from 6 to 8 o'clock. Knowing the ability of the ladies of this church in the art of cooking we can advise all to attend who appreciate good and delicious edibles. During the dinner a number of selections of music will be given to assist digestion and a pleasant evening will be spent for which a program is being prepared by local talent.

Wm. Saunders, the publicity manager of Henderson's Directories, spent a day in town last week in obtaining information for the Alberta Gazette. He expressed himself as most agreeably surprised at the growth of Gleichen since his last visit about three years ago. He could scarce comprehend that such a vast change in the town and country could be wrought in so short a time. He was particularly struck by the number of loads of wheat he saw hauled to our elevators while he was in town.

The CALL would respectfully ask all those who are in arrears with their subscriptions to this paper to do their best to let us have the amount. All of the amounts are small but as there are several hundred over due they mean a lot to us. Just now we have many accounts to meet ourselves for paper, ink, wages, etc., and will very much appreciate immediate attention.

C. Millie states that this year he has reaped one of the best crops of wheat he has ever had, his wheat weighing 61½ pounds to the bushel and yielding 41 bushels to the acre and grading No. 1.

To buy, sell or trade anything quickly the CALL miscellaneous ads are the medium.

GET YOUR CANADIAN HOME FROM THE CANADIAN PACIFIC

Wonderfully fertile land is offered for sale by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company at prices ranging from $11 to $30 per acre. There is no better agricultural land than this virgin Canadian soil. It is unsurpassed for all forms of agriculture, including grain growing, stock raising, dairying, poultry culture, vegetable growing, and general mixed farming. The lands are convenient to railways and markets, and are located in a country of low taxation and delightful climate.

TWENTY YEARS TO PAY

Under the Company's new policy no land is sold to speculators, but only to those who will occupy and improve it. The terms of sale are now one-twentieth cash and the balance spread over twenty years, with interest at six per cent per annum.

ASSISTANCE TO FARMERS

Under certain conditions the Company will advance a loan of $2000 to new settlers to be used in erecting a house and barn, fencing the land and sinking a well. This loan is repayable on the same terms as the purchase price.

Gleichen Bank Clerk Jailed in England

Percy S. Kelly Gets Six Weeks Hard for False Pretences

Kelly Raised Bank Robbery Cry in Gleichen Two Years Ago

Readers of the CALL will remember that in the fall of 1911 one Sunday evening a young Englishman, who was a clerk in the Trades Bank, named Percy S. Kelly, created quite a lot of excitement by racing out the back door of the bank with a revolver shouting for help and robbers. Dr. Hughes ran up the lane and captured Kelly for the robber. Explanations followed and Kelly continued his race and howling until he reached Manager Wilson's residence where he said the bank was being robbed and fell in a faint on the floor. Recovering Kelly flourished his revolver and pointed it at Mrs. Wilson and others in a very wild manner. Afterwards he said that returning from church and entering the bank that night a man caught hold of him and after a struggle with him got out the door and ran off.

However, all this would now seem a fake in the light of the appended article which appeared in a newspaper in England. Many here thought he was a "little peculiar," but it may be that he was only looking for notoriety — and six weeks' hard labor may give him all of it that he desires.

The article reads as follows: "Victimizing clergymen appears to be the favorite form of fraud practiced by Percy Seymour Kelly, a well-dressed young man, who at Whitenill (Hants) was sentenced to six weeks of hard labour. He was charged with having obtained food and lodging by false pretences from the Rev. B. G. O'Rourke, an army chaplain at Bordon Camp. Mr. O'Rourke stated that he met Kelly when the latter was motor-cycling through the camp. He said he was a Canadian clergyman, and the chaplain of a militia regiment in Canada. Mr. O'Rourke introduced him to another army chaplain, by whom he was put up for the night. He promised to address the local C. E. M. S. on his work in Canada. On the following day Kelly was found, apparently unconscious, near a motor-cycle at Hendley. He said he had met with an accident and had been robbed of £1 and a watch while he was unconscious. Mr. O'Rourke found him lodgings and gave him food until he went away.

Sergt. Clark said Kelly described himself as a clerk in holy orders at Gleichen, Alberta, Canada. There was no truth in the story of the robbery, and a warrant was issued for Kelly's arrest. When taken into custody at Aldershot he said, "It is all lies I told you about losing the money. I am not a clergyman." Supt. Reuben said Kelly was the son of the late superintendent of the Prudential Assurance Co. at Haywards Heath. In March 1903 he was an office boy in the local council offices, and on being discharged he was apprenticed to a firm of tailors in Walworth rd. There he obtained an officer's uniform, and, going to Wellington barracks, had the guard turned out. After that his indentures were cancelled.

He arrived with two ladies in a motor car at Cuckfield Union, attired as a minister, last July, and asked to be allowed to inspect the house. Permission, however, was refused. He went to Gosport, where he preached a sermon at the garrison church. At Landport he conducted part of the service one Sunday, and read a portion of the burial service at a funeral. Through an officer of the Hampshire Regt. he obtained a motor-cycle, on which he rode through the county, putting up at various hotels and houses and leaving without paying. He also victimized several clergymen in the same manner.

"As above stated he has now been sent to prison for six weeks' hard labour."

On a Payroll

How is our friend Grafton's position on that bill regarded? asked one member of a legislature.

Well, replied the other, the general impression is that his position is a very lucrative one.

One night Pat was a rolling round show, when the showman called him and told him that a lion had just died, and offered him $25 to take its place, and Pat, being out of work, jumps at the chance.

As soon as he is in the cage another door opens and in walks a tiger. Pat is so frightened that he backs to the other side of the cage, trembling all over.

When he had given up all hope, a voice from the tiger exclaimed: Stop trembling, Pat, I'm a human myself.

Alpine Tunnel

By the forthcoming opening of traffic of the great Loetschberg Tunnel in Switzerland, and the full advantages of the Simplon Tunnel route, with which it connects, will be available for the first time, greatly improving the railway route from England and France to Italy. The Loetschberg is nine and one-quarter miles in length—a long tunnel, but one surpassed by the St. Gothard, which is about a quarter of a mile longer and the Simplon, twelve and one-quarter miles in length.

Yes, I see, persisted the lawyer, but you must be more definite. Do you polish them or do you move them?

Mrs. Eggless—Do you dare your husband's rock?

Mr. Dashaway—No, I speak of them a little more profanely than that.

Teacher (in grammar class)—What is a singular pronoun, Johnny?

Moral Clean-Up

A Sunday school teacher on the Park Slope, in Brooklyn, told her boys of the city's spring clean up, and of the admonition that even the cellars and backyards should be cleaned. Thence she drew a lesson in moral cleanliness, telling the youngsters that while regard for outward appearance was commendable inward purity was much more meritorious. To make them further interested she offered a prize to the boy who should bring the written or printed motto that best expressed it.

Remember she said, that the motto must bear especially on the necessity for inward cleanliness—the purity of a heart as pure and polished as spotless gold.

Last Sunday one of the smallest of the boys handed in a placard printed in big black letters.

Where did you get this? the teacher asked.

Swiped it this morning off Tony's bootblack stand outside the corner bar-room.

The motto read: Shine inside.

Microbes

A microbe is an imaginary being invented by doctors to scare people out of dying a natural death. Microbes have taken the place of the evil spirits in vogue before the period when people grew so intelligent that they wouldn't believe anything they didn't hear.

Microbes come in assorted packages and spend their entire time in multiplying, adding, subtracting and dividing. They multiply screams, add to the fears, subtract your money and divide all the profits among the doctors.

Just as everything was once represented by a deity, so everything is now represented by a microbe. Some men are born with microbes, some acquire microbes, but all at some time have them thrust upon them.

Conquers Asthma. To be relieved from the terrible suffocating due to asthma is a great thing, but to be safe guarded for the future is even greater. Not only does Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy bring prompt relief, but it introduces a new era of life for the afflicted. Systematic inhaling of smoke or fumes from the remedy prevent re-attacks and often effects a permanent cure.

Helping a Brother

Suddenly the man with the chin beard who was eating his luncheon in a restaurant, reached across the table, touched the button in the lapel of the coat worn by the man directly opposite him and gave him the grip of the secret order to which both belonged.

Brother, he said, I see you're in need, and to live up to my own sworn duty I am compelled to—

In need! interrupted the other. In wide-eyed astonishment, in need of what?

Of somebody to tell you that a knife is not the proper implement to use when you are eating corned beef hash.

By prompt action half a dozen waiters quelled the disturbance that began immediately, but they were too late to prevent the destruction of about $10 worth of tableware.

A New England mother had come upon her eight-year-old son enjoying a feast whereof the components were jam, butter and bread.

Son, said the mother, don't you think it a bit extravagant to eat butter with that fine jam?

No, ma'am, was the response. It's economical; the piece of bread does for both.

The Meanest Man

Why don't you buy something at my table? demanded the girl at the charity fair.

Because I only buy from the home-ly girls, said the man. They have a harder time making sales.

The girl was not offended, and worked this right down the line.

Curses on Him

That fellow is bitterly hated by the suffragettes.

He invented the acid-proof envelope.

A Cow

Mr. Summerman—Is it true that since coming up here you've engaged yourself to Billy, Harry, Ed. and myself?

Miss Sweetly—What if it is?

Mr. Summerman—Then I'd like to know if you have any objection to all of us chipping in to buy the engagement ring?

The Dogs of Labrador

In Dr. Grenfell's latest book he tells some interesting things concerning the Labrador dogs. The creatures are fed once a day and are always hungry, and yet a team will go for two or three days without food. Dr. Grenfell says that he has travelled seventy miles a day with a half breed team of seven dogs and 250 pounds of baggage. The beauty of a dog team is that it seems to banish all conventionalities. You can go anywhere and everywhere with no roads, no hedges, no walls, no restriction but your own will; and that will, without rein or bridle, you make your dog's will. Dogs can carry you up almost the steepest snow slope and down again in safety. They do not slip or sink in, and if they fall over even a high cliff in the winter they are very rarely hurt. They seem to understand what you say, and so form a better companion than a horse. They are automobiles which need no handling of their machinery. They enjoy travelling almost more than their masters enjoy it. They learn to love you as only a dog will, and if it were not for their occasional outbreaks of wickedness they would make the best of company. As it is, I know of no greater pleasure possible than a large strong team, a good leader, a brisk, bright spring day and a really long journey to go.

Our dogs know little or no fear, and unlike the wolves, will unhesitatingly attack even the largest polar bear. Dr. Grenfell says again. On one occasion a man's dogs, travelling along smooth ice, scented a white bear and started off like the wind. They suddenly turned a point and ran right into him, so that the traces tangled around the bear before the astonished driver had time to unlash his gun. As soon as he could he cut loose the traces, but even in harness the dogs kept bruln bay. Though the bear stood up to fight on his hind legs, the dogs managed to get in some good bites without being hurt.

On another occasion, adds the doctor a man brought me a specially valuable dog that a bear had squeezed. The bear had been sighted some distance off on the ice floe, and the dogs were slipped to hold him up for the hunter. By the time he arrived on the spot they had the bear practically killed. But two had been daunted by him, one clawed and one squeezed.

TWICE PROVEN CURE FOR NERVES

Irritable, Hysterical, Sleepless, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food Restores Health.

There is a message in this letter for thousands of women who are suffering from broken-down nervous systems. Sleepless nights, spells of irritability over little things, spells of dizziness and nervous sick headaches are among the symptoms.

You may not realize the nature of your ailment until nervous prostration comes upon you. But in whatever stage you find yourself, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is ready to help you.

Mrs. W. J. May, 88 Annette street, Toronto, writes: "Some years ago I suffered from nervous trouble and took Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, which completely cured me. About six months ago I received a shock which again shattered my nervous system to such an extent that I was irritable and hysterical, and could not sleep nights. I began to use the Nerve Food again and was not disappointed. Improvement was apparent from the first box, and now I am entirely well." Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50, all dealers.

Looking for Pointers

Husband (at police station)—They say you have caught the fellow who robbed our house night before last.

Sergeant—Yes; do you want to see him?

Husband—Sure. I'd like to talk to him. I want to know how he got in without waking the wife. I've been trying to do that for the last twenty years.

Quit Struggling

Young Lady—No, mammy, I have to be a man. I guess I'm to be an old maid.

Old Mammy—Well, honey, dey say dem is happiest of all—once dey quit struggling.

Blk—I read somewhere that baseball was invented by the Indians.

Dis—Guess that's right; and we've got a lot of wooden ones playing it.

A Synonym

A great many people agree in practice with the school-boy, who when asked to define a synonym, said: A synonym is a word you use when you can't spell the one you thought of first.

Correct

I can tell you, said he, how much water runs over the Niagara Falls to a quart.

How much, asked she.

Two pints.

An Angel

Old Lady—Well, here's a shilling for you, my poor man.

Tramp—A shilling? Lor' bless yer, Lydy, if there ever was a fallen angel, you're it!

SHOES OF THE PAST

Present Day Footgear Owes Its Shape to the Romans

The early shoe seems to have been a sandal. In the Roman, Egyptian, and Greek days men wore sandals of hide or leather or wood.

When we read of shoes in the Bible we know that sandals were meant. In Egypt they made sandals woven from palm leaves and papyrus. It was the fashion for a conquering Egyptian to have painted on the soles of his shoes the figures and faces of his conquered enemies.

In early times the sandal took on many forms. In Greece the sock was used for comedy and the buskin for tragedy. The Luskin reached to the knee, something like a Wellington boot. The sock reached only to the ankle and was worn whenever quick movement was desired.

It was in Rome first that the sandal began to take shape like our modern shoe. There are in East Europe many people whose civilization is derived from Rome, who still cling to the un-reformed sandal. But in the days when Rome was in her glory shoes were far from a simple affair. For instance the shoe gear of the patricians was decorated with golden clasps and elaborately embroidered.

The sandals of Egyptians had wooden soles. And the French peasant of the present generation derives his sabots from that source. Emperors wore purple buskins, and red was even permitted the nobility, but the common people were forced to content themselves with the plain sober colors.

In the early years in England extraordinary development took place in the shoe line. The Plantagenets had the toes of their shoes turned up like horns and drawn out to a long length and pulled up to the knee. These were brilliantly bedecked with jewels and precious stones. Rosettes and ribbons were also attached.

All nations recognize that footgear is the most important part of an army's equipment. It has been claimed that the sturdy sandals of the Teutonic tribes enabled them to cross Europe to the walls of Rome, and that if it had not been for the stability of their shoe apparel they would never have been successful in conquering the Romans.

Right Friendship

We cannot have too many friends; the virtue which we appreciate we to some extent appropriate, so that thus we are made at last more fit for every relation of life. A base friendship is or a narrowing and exclusive tendency, but a noble one is not exclusive; its very superiority and dispersed love is the humanity which sweetens society and sympathizes with foreign nations; for though its foundations are private it is in effect a public affair and a public advantage, and the friend more than the father of a family deserves well of the state.

The Kite in War

Kites are to form part of the regular equipment of French warships hereafter, being classed as aeronautic apparatus with aeroplanes and dirigibles. They will be powerful enough to take up an observer and will be used for purposes of military observation, for which we are told they are vastly superior to balloons. The greater the wind the more easily they are handled, say a writer in L'Illustration.

The mounted kites of Captain Sacconey have been used by the French army for some months. After a long series of experiments, they are also to be used by the navy, which has laid out an aeronautic programme, as follows: The use of aeroplanes is to be limited to coast defense. Dirigibles of great radius of action will be utilized for naval scouting. Reconnoitre will be had to the kite for gathering the squadron as a whole and for surveying a foreign blockaded coast.

The kite has the advantage that the wind, the great enemy of other aerial devices, facilitates its evolutions. If the weather is calm, the ship makes its own wind by its motion. A speed of 13 knots is necessary to elevate the observer. These kites, dismantled and stowed away in some corner, can be mounted five minutes after being brought to the bridge of the ship; all this is being done another party makes ready the apparatus for sending up. There are required fifteen minutes for sending, getting ready the basket, and installing the observer; who remains connected with the ship by telephone. Five minutes is necessary for an ascension of 1,000 feet. Ten suffice for hauling in the rig and stowing it away.

BABY'S GREAT DANGER DURING HOT WEATHER

More little ones die during hot weather than at any other time of the year. Diarrhoea, dysentery, cholera infantum and stomach disorders come without warning, and when a medicine is not at hand to give promptly the short delay too frequently means that the child has passed beyond aid. Baby's Own Tablets should always be kept in the home where there are young children. An occasional dose of the Tablets will prevent stomach and bowel troubles, or if the trouble comes suddenly the prompt use of the Tablets will cure the baby. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Evidence of Expertise

Does that young man understand music? I think he must, replied the man who always gives the benefit. When he plays he sounds exactly like a piano tuner.

BRIDGES WAS DOCTOR

NEW POET LAUREATE WIDELY KNOWN IN HOSPITALS.

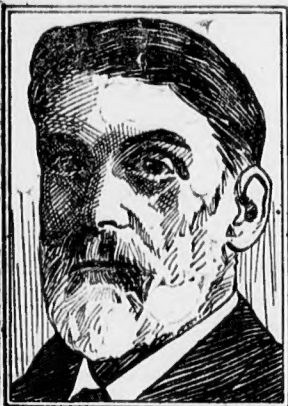

Successor to the Poet Left Vacant by Late Alfred Austin Has Written Eight Poetic Dramas, a Couple of Masques, Many Lyrics and Several Pieces in Classic Metres—Work of High Quality.

Mr. Robert Bridges, D.Litt., has been appointed Poet Laureate in succession to the late Mr. Alfred Austin.

Mr. Robert Bridges, who has been described as Britain's only classical poet, is sixty-eight. He was born in Kent, and from Eton he went to Corpus Christi College, at Oxford, the university which just a year ago honored him with the degree of Doctor of Letters. After leaving Oxford he settled down to study medicine in London, at St. Bartholomew's, where he eventually became casualty physician. Assistant of the Children's Hospital, Great Ormond Street, was his next post, followed by a period as physician at the Great Northern Hospital. In 1882 he retired from medical practice, and a couple of years later married the eldest daughter of the late Mr. Alfred Waterhouse, the well-known artist. He lives at Oxford.

Mr. Bridges is undoubtedly one of the surest of immortality among our contemporaries. His work maintains throughout an extremely high standard. If, any, of it has suffered from hurry, he has never allowed the quest for popularity or gain to tell against the perfection and beauty, but careful and studied finish has ever been his motto.

His output includes eight poetic dramas, a couple of masques, numerous

MR. ROBERT BRIDGES.

Lyrics, and several pieces in classical prosody. He maintains that English prosody depends on the number of stressed syllables in a line, not on the number of syllables, and that poetry should follow the rules of natural speech. A number of essays stand to his credit, and he has strong and, in some particulars, curious views on spelling reform.

The new Poet Laureate has been particularly successful in the writing of odes. The following is from that written for the bi-centenary commemoration of Henry Purcell:

The sea with melancholy war
Moated about our casled shore;
His world-wide elemental roar
Girdeth our lives with tragic zone. . . .

Yet shall his storm and mastering wave
Assure the Empire to the brave;
And to his billowy bass belongs
The music of our patriot songs.
When to his rigging he rides
In furious following, carrying a-row,
Lashed with hail and withering snow;
And ever undaunted hearts outside
His rushing waters wide.

The beauty of his masques, too, compares well with that of the greatest of this form of expression, and his epic, "Eros and Psyche," is distinguished for delightful melody. His lyric gift is also remarkable. We quote the following from "Shorter Poems, Book I.:

I heard a linnet courting
His lady in the spring;
His mates were idly sporting
Nor stayed to hear him sing
His song of love—
I fear my speech distorting
His tender love.

The phrases of his pleading
Were full of young delight;
And she that gave him heed
Interpreted aright
His gay, sweet notes—
So sadly married in the reading—
His tender notes.

And when he ceased, the hearer
Awaited the refrain.
Till swiftly perching nearer
He sang his song again,
His pretty song—
Would that my verse spoke clearer
His tender song!

Ye happy, airy creatures!
That in the merry spring
Think not of what misfeatures
Or care the year may bring!
But unto love
Resign your simple natures
To tender love.

The salary of the laureateship is £70, with an allowance of £27 in lieu of a butt of sack. Dr. Bridges himself contradicted a report early this month that he had been offered the vacant post.

M.P. Had Luck.

The popular member of the British Parliament who left bank notes to the value of £50 in a taxi-cab recently, and had them turned by a friend who fortunately paid to be the next fare, has had good luck which is denied to many. On discovering his loss the M.P. communicated with Scotland Yard, but before the police could reply he received a telegram from his friend apprising him that he had found on the seat of a taxi-cab which he had hired not only the bank notes, but papers which showed the identity of the owner.

Oligymen Barred.

As a club the Personal Service Club in Piccadilly is unique in that it altogether debar oligymen from becoming members, though it has a resident chaplain of its own. Recently, however, this rule has been relaxed in favor of the two Archbishops and the Bishop of London, who are honorary members. The club was founded in King George's Coronation year, and now both University and public school men are admitted to membership.

BURDENSOME NAMES.

Awful Appellations Which Men Have Had to Bear.

The most burdensome name ever bestowed on a child was that given by Arthur Pepper, a laundryman of West Derby, Liverpool, to his daughter, born in December, 1882. It comprised one name for every letter of the alphabet, and was certainly ingenious in its way, running: Anna Bertha Cecilia Diana Emily Fanny Gertrude Hypatia Inez Jane Kate Louise Maud Nora Ophelia Quince Rebecca Starkey Teresa Ulysses Venus Winifred Xenophon Yetty Zeno.

P, of course, was provided in the surname, Pepper. Hundreds of examples of this poor form of parental wit occur in the entries for the past few years. Noah's Ark Smith, Sardine Box, Jolly, Death, Judas Iscariot Brown, One too Many Johnson, Not-Wanted Smith, Bovril Simpson, Merry Christmas, Figgett, Odious Heaton, Anno Domini Davis, are the names of children probably living who will have to bear them through life, unless they wash themselves clean with subterfuge. How can such children observe the Fifth Commandment?

There was for a long time a curiosity in nomenclature on the Australian pension list. His name was "Through-much-tribulation-we-enter-the-Kingdom-of-Heaven-Smith." The officials of the Pension Department very pardonably abbreviated him into "Tribby Smith." Has any diligent student of our pension list discovered anything that caps this?

It is not surprising that the names of Dickens' characters—odd though they are—should be found in real life, for it was from life that many of them were taken. Some, as we know, were copied from the names over shop doors, etc., but this was not the novelist's only source of selection. Among his papers John Forster found carefully-drawn-up lists of names, with the source from which he obtained them, and the longest lists were those drawn from the "Privy Council Education Lists." Some of the names thus noted are too extravagant for anything but reality—Jolly Stick, Bill Marigold, George Muzzle, William Why, Robert Gospel, Robin Scrubban, Sarah Goldsacks, Catherine Two, Sophia Doodmady, Rosetta Dust, Sally Gimblet!

For quaint surnames one should search the records of Northumberland. Mr. A. G. Bradley has made a collection of some of these Northumbrian patronymics. He is writing of the times of the Border raids, and there was a Robert Unthank in those days. Among others, too, we find the name of Adam Aydrunken, who "upset his boat in the Tyne, and accidentally drowned his wife, Beatrice." "Cecilia, the wife of John Unkuthman (uncouthman), cut her throat with a razor." The incident requires no explanation. "Another unfortunate person figures as Adam-with-the-nose."

Is This Babel?

The latest archaeological discovery in proof of tradition, if not of history, is that of the Tower of Babel, according to a report submitted by the Abbe Henri de Genouillac before the Academy of Inscriptions and Belles Lettres of Paris.

The Abbe was sent out by the French Institute on a mission of research to El Ahymer, 80 miles south of Bagdad, not far from the Euphrates, where he uncovered the remains of the city of Kish, one of the earliest capitals of Babylonia, and even an antecedent Babylon itself. Here he unearthed an immense palace, similar in construction to other early royal buildings, already discovered in other sections of the country.

Among other relics of the distant past which he found in the courtyard of this place, were the ruins of an immensely high tower, which he believes to have been the original of the Bible story of the Tower of Babel, the name inscribed on the wall being: "The Temple of the Foundation of Heaven and Earth," which was erected to the memory of the National god, Zamama.

Amusing Errors in Official Reports.

To the list of misprints in official documents must be added the delicious sentence which appeared in the final report of the Vivisection Commission issued last year: "We now see a marmot, the spinal cord of which had previously been divided by a vivisection." This should have read, according to a Parliamentary paper circulated subsequently: "We once saw a marmot, the spinal cord of which had previously been divided, bite a vivisection."

A little slip in the 1907 edition of the Royal Warrant detailing the various Army rates of pay, also necessitated the printing and promulgation of an official correction. In that warrant, under the heading, "Daily Rates of Pay," appeared: "Field-Marshal Commanding-in-Chief, Mediterranean, £5,000." This gave to the Duke of Connaught the generous remuneration of nearly £2,000,000 a year until the correction explained that "daily rate" in this case should have been "yearly rate."

A Prison of Silence.

Entombed in a grim castle on the outskirts of Lisbon are some of the most miserable men on earth. These are inmates of Portugal's "prison of silence." In this building everything that human ingenuity can suggest to render the lives of its prisoners a horrible, maddening torture is done. The corridors, piled tier on tier five storeys high, extend from a common centre like the spokes of a huge wheel.

The cells are narrow, tomb-like and within each stands a coffin. The attendants creep about in felt slippers. No one is allowed to utter a word. The silence is that of the grave. Once a day the cell doors are unlocked and the 500 wretches march out, clothed in shrouds and with faces covered by masks, for it is part of this hideous punishment that none may look upon the countenances of his fellow prisoners. Few of them endure this torture for more than 10 years.

Bats for Admirals.

There is a rumor that the King is about to revive an interesting naval custom which existed in former days. At one time Admirals of the Fleet had batons issued by the Sovereign upon their appointment, just as Field Marshals have today. If the King revives this custom, each of the nine Admirals of the Fleet will receive a baton. One of the old-time admirals' batons may be seen in the Royal United Service Institution Museum.

Bald as a Badger.

It is a curious fact that the phrase "bald as a badger" owes its origin to authors of the past who had no exact knowledge of natural history and who because the forehead of a badger is covered with smooth white hairs came to the conclusion that it was bald.

Spots on the Nails.

A paste made of equal parts of turpentine and myrrh applied to the white spots on finger nails will prevent them from developing.

The Milky Way.

Among the Greeks the Milky way was known as the Galaxy and the Circle of Milk. The Chinese and Arabians call it the Celestial river. Some of the American Indian tribes regarded it as the path of departed souls to the spirit land, and in England it used to be familiarly called Jacob's ladder.

Our Many Mines.

Mines in the United States are numerous. There are about 6,500 coal mines, and of metal mines there are about 6,000 producing and developing.

Korea's Edible Grasses.

The use of grasses, roots and the tender bark of trees in Korea does not necessarily imply a deficiency of food supplies. These articles are much in use by Koreans, even of the well to do classes, for salads and side dishes at meals.

London's Oldest Papers.

It is generally thought that the Times, published in 1778, is the oldest London daily, but the Morning Post was in existence in 1772. The oldest Sunday newspaper, the Observer, was established in 1791, when it was sold at 8d. a copy, a price which was also charged for the Weekly Dispatch. The result of these prices was that the average person could not afford to buy a newspaper, but used to pay for the hire of one.

Macaroni.

French macaroni differs from the Italian in so far that the French is dried in closed rooms instead of in the open air, as in Italy.

Chinese Barbers.

The Chinese people have very light beards, and their practice for untold years has been to patronize the native barbers, who carry their equipment suspended at the two ends of a coolie pole across the shoulder and stroll about the native streets seeking customers. Comparatively few Chinese have adopted the plan of shaving themselves, and these consist entirely of those who have imbibed western ideas.

Shampoo Jelly.

Odd bits of soap when boiled make an excellent shampoo jelly.

New Zealand Flax.

New Zealand flax is one of a number of wild weeds that yield their gatherers great wealth. The flax, the strongest known, grows wild in marshes. When it is cultivated it dwindles and its fibers become brittle and valueless.

Kerosene Lamps.

The odor of kerosene lamps can be stopped by putting one teaspoonful of fine table salt into each lamp. The salt should be changed once a month.

Brazil's Coffee.

Brazil is the greatest coffee producing country in the world and alone furnishes two-thirds of the total world's consumption. The Brazilian coffee producing states are Sao Paulo, Rio de Janeiro, Minas Geraes, Espirito Santo, Bahia, Santa Catharina, Ceara, Parahyba, Pernambuco and Parana.

Patching Rubber.

To mend rubber use soft kid from an old glove and paste the patch to the gum with automobile paste. The leather adheres better to the gum than a gum patch.

Burning Trees.

Intense heat and intense cold produce fractures in various substances. In the most extreme cold weather it is not uncommon, especially if the cold has come on suddenly, to find trees that are split from the ground to the top by the action of frost. Freezing expands the water in the cells of the wood, and so suddenly is this done that the trees burst as would a pitcher or mug in which water was confined.

Platinum.

In color platinum is bluish gray, and, although to the inexperienced eye silver, nickel and aluminium look something like it, the first two are attacked quickly by nitric acid, while aluminium is so very light in comparison with platinum that it would be difficult to mistake one for the other.

Iodine.

Iodine acts as a healing remedy as well as a disinfectant and is especially helpful for wounds caused by rusty nails, etc.

The Battle of Mukden.

The greatest battle of modern times, judged by the number of lives lost, was the battle of Mukden in the Russo-Japanese war. It lasted from Feb. 24 to March 10, 1905. Fully 350,000 Russians and 400,000 Japanese took part. Approximately 125,000 of the former and 50,000 of the latter were killed.

Arm Strength.

Equality of strength in both arms occurs almost twice as frequently with women as with men, more men than women being stronger in the right arm than in the left.

DICK TURPIN IN PETTICOATS.

Extraordinary Exploits of Women Highwaymen.

There have been several instances in England of women highwaymen who have met with almost as much success as the redoubtable Dick Turpin and Claude Duval. There is Moll Cutpurse, for instance, who from being an ordinary pickpocket or purse thief—in those days long purses were worn at the girdle, and Moll became an expert at cutting them and fleecing their contents, hence her curious nickname—developed into a daring night rider. She frequented Hampstead Heath and relieved many wealthy coach travelers of their valuables.

She worked single-handed, dressed and rode like a man, and, although she was captured on several occasions, managed by extensive bribes to prevent the appearance of witnesses. She ultimately died in her bed at the venerable age of 74.

Anne Holland was born in a slum of London, and was first heard of as a barmaid. Ultimately she married a man named James Wilson who developed into a clever footpad, and when he was hanged for his crimes she promptly took to the road herself. She obtained much property of value, and was regarded in those days as a female demon, for she thought nothing of shooting down those who resisted her in the dead of night. She was, however, ultimately captured and hanged.

Another extraordinary case of man and wife becoming highwaymen in partnership is afforded by the careers of Mr. and Mrs. Bracey, who were both hanged at Tyburn within a year of one another. John Bracey's life is one of the most romantic stories in the annals of old-time crime. She was the pretty daughter of a wealthy farmer, and when she met Bracey, a dare devil of the high roads, she threw in her lot with his and quickly became a highwayman's ideal companion. The pair proved very successful, and many a stage coach did they waylay.

John's career, however, was a short one. One day he robbed a person of quality, a justice of the King's Court, who was relentless in having her sought out. She was caught, identified, and—English justice being short in those days—she was tried, convicted, and sent to the gallows before she was 21.

For Smokers Only.

The man who is afflicted with a nervous or excitable temperament should pin his faith to a consistent tobacco. This type of man tugs hard at his pipe, and if he employs a fine-cut tobacco he gets through a pipeful in record time without deriving any satisfaction from it. On the other hand a man blessed with a philosophical phlegmatic temperament, who takes life easily, will find it a nuisance to keep a coarse tobacco alight, and he is better served with a fine cut.

If not used to excess, tobacco calms the nerves, and the test of all tobacco is the manner in which it burns. If it produces in the stem of a pipe a bitter substance termed empyreumatic oil, you will be well advised to try another brand. In the case of a cigar you should never smoke more than two-thirds, for by a process of condensation the remaining third becomes saturated with oils and gases.

Nicotine, though one of the finest antidotes to strychnine, is in itself a deadly poison. A medium sized cigar contains sufficient nicotine to kill two men, but the cigar is practically harmless when smoked in a sensible manner. Still, it is a simple manner to extract the nicotine from tobacco, for all that one needs to do is to soak in an earthen dish filled with water for the space of an hour, and then leave the tobacco to dry in the open air. The water in which the tobacco has soaked can be utilized for horticultural purposes, for it is a potent destroyer of insects.

Heard Enough.

Young Giles, eager to join the Metropolitan Police Force, journeyed to London to pass the necessary medical examination. This he survived satisfactorily, and the next day the proud young recruit was interviewed by a high official.

"Well, my man," said the latter, "you look a promising sort of fellow. What kind of an education have you had?"

"Oh, sir," said the recruit, "I was educated at a county school."

"Ah, and you have a good general knowledge, I hope?"

"Oh, yes, sir."

"I wonder—can you tell me, for example, how many miles it is from London to Edinburgh?"

At this the recruit became nervously agitated, and at length he blurted out:

"Look here, sir, if you're going to put me on that beat, I'm done with the force."

Perfumes.

The delicate odor of violet or sandalwood that clings to women's gowns nowadays is either subtle and fascinating or else vulgar. To be the former, it must be as mysterious in its coming and goings as the wind itself—no drop of essence, no matter how delicate, must produce it. Sachets thrown anywhere and everywhere in the bureau drawers must make every undergarment fragrant, and wherever the dresser elects to put a layer of wool wadding, there must be a sprinkling of powder and a resting place.

The perfume once chosen should be the same always, until it becomes a part of the personality, and is as much associated with one as her favorite color.

A Movable Town.

For three months of the year the town of Gartok in Tibet is situated at the place where it is designated on the map. During the other nine months it is not there at all, but is about 40 miles farther south, at a much lower altitude. Climatic conditions are the cause of this migratory habit. When the heat grows too intense for comfort the whole town packs up and, driving the herds of yaks, sheep and goats, moves up to the higher altitude and the traders from India at once begin to drift in.

Brevities.

The love of housewifery is inherent in every woman, though it has often to be crowded out by the multiplicity of other interests, or starved from inattention.

RED HAIR POPULAR.

Scientist Explains the Charm of Those With Titian Tresses.

Some interesting facts concerning red-haired people have been given to the world recently by Monsieur Girouard, a French scientist. It seems that for many hundreds of years no one has ever been able to explain why a girl who has red hair is so sure to be popular with her men friends, why she is never a wall flower at a dance, and almost sure of a seat in the car, or why men are so persistently gallant to a red-haired girl and find her on the whole so intensely alluring. M. Girouard has explained this apparent enigma in several ways.

He claims that, first, red hair is generally accompanied by certain qualities which make a woman extremely attractive. She has soft, smooth skin, for instance, though this is sometimes freckled. Then the finest of complexions are often found on red-haired girls and these sun-kissed girls have blood that is warmer and flows more swiftly than that in the veins of their supposedly less favored sisters.

Always Affectionate.

This often makes them impulsive, hot tempered, and jealous, but it always makes them affectionate, and they have a reputation for passionate devotion. A loyal friend but a relentless enemy is the red-haired woman. When a red-haired woman has dark blue or violet eyes and dark lashes she is good to have for a friend and bad to have for an enemy. All red-haired women are jealous.

Helen of Troy had red hair. So did Queen Elizabeth. Some of the greatest men of the world had red hair.

Red hair is common among the ruling families of Europe. That is supposed to be so from the fact that so many of them descend from the Norseman, that great race of red heads who conquered most of England, France, Sicily, and Cyprus, founded dynasties all over Europe in the Middle Ages, and gave their auburn-haired daughters as wives to a hundred kings and princes. Since those old days red hair has been a mark of aristocracy, for the conquering race have been blondes.

Conquest and iron go together and red hair is caused by a superabundance of iron in the blood. The color of the hair is due to a pigment which has been called melanin, which is secreted in the roots of the hair. Iron when oxidized, inside the body as well as out of it, produces red. This explains the freckles that so often mar a red-haired woman's beauty.

Red hair is hereditary. There can be little doubt, however, that a young person who has red hair has a strong antipathy to a red-haired person of the opposite sex. This is confirmed by the fact that despite prolonged inquiry among thousands of families scientists have been successful in obtaining only two cases where both parents had red hair.

Though the red was not a clear red in both parents all of the eight children had red hair. If only one parent has red hair the offspring is not so likely to have it. Red-haired offspring may come from two brown or from two glossy black-haired parents. In that case both dark-haired parents will probably have had ancestors with red hair. Glossy black hair in the parents is especially apt to produce red hair in children, because all glossiness is due to red hidden by black pigment.

M. Girouard says red hair has been a mark of aristocracy and beauty solely because red-haired persons are descended from dominating, conquering races like the Scots, Normans, and Scandinavians.

Much in Little.

Quite recently, at a place which is famous for its aerodrome, a youthful wag was watching with interest some wonderful contests in the air. Just when excitement was at its height, the wag started up a rambling conversation with those immediately round him.

"That's a terrible poison that's just been discovered," he remarked lamely to no one in particular.

"What's it called?" inquired an elderly gentleman beside him.

"Why, aeroplane poison, of course!" came the curt reply.

"Is it deadly?" asked the E. G.

"I should say so!" jerked out the juvenile wag, in his most knotty style.

"And how much would kill a person?" went on the questioning one.

"Oh, one drop!" came the retort.

Then that particular group became the less by one.

To Be the Best Dressed City.

The greatest decorative scheme ever outlined for any city, American or European, has been prepared for San Francisco during the Petrolia festival, October 22 to 25.

Here is a list of the chief features of the decorations, for which estimates have been received by the Petrolia festival committee: Ten miles of greens, 100,000 flowers, 24 acres of flags, 50 tons of plaster for statues, colonnades and the like; 40,000 electric bulbs with 1,000,000 candle power, 10,000 gallons of water for the big fountain in Union Square.

Changing Perfumes.

Perfumes were in common use in the ancient world, but views have changed as to the pleasantness of various odors. The smell of aloes is now thought disagreeable by most people, but in the old days aloes, both as solid extract and as wood, formed a staple perfume or aromatic. Sakord, moreover, was a most popular perfume with the Romans, and was much in favor in England until about the 16th century.

Human Voice Always Deepening.

The human voice becomes a shade deeper with each successive generation. Among our more remote ancestors a genuine bass voice was unknown, and most of them sang in what would now be called falsetto tones. Nowadays among masculine singers baritone voices are the most common, and these are of a lower timbre than they were 50 years ago.

What About Hair.

HONORS LOYALISTS

REV. R. S. FORNERI BUILT CHURCH TO THEIR MEMORY.

Beautiful Edifice of St. Alban the Martyr at Adolphustown Was Erected Through the Efforts of Well Loved Pastor of the Parish—Is a Brilliant Scholar, but Has a Retiring Disposition.

With the right to sign his name as the nobles do, there lives in Kingston, Ont., in a humility which is almost weakness, a clergyman who has brains far beyond the average scholarship, and a charm of manner which this generation calls "the charm of the old school." He is known as the Rev. Richard Sykes Forneri, M.A., B.D., and he has never risen to a high place in the church because he has persisted in remaining in the background, content with the adoring affection of parishioners who, rightly call him "saintly."

Mr. Forneri is the son of the late Dr. Forneri, an Italian of high birth, who held the chair of Moderns at Varsity, in the days of Dr. McCaul, and college contemporaries tell us that "Forneri never saw the outside of a Greek grammar till six months before his matriculation, but he headed the honor list." After his graduation he went in for Divinity at Trinity, and it was his good pleasure to champion the late Provost Whitaker, when controversy raged round that cleric's High Churchmanship. "On my reputation as a Low Churchman," Mr. Forneri has often declared, "I never saw the cloven hoof of the Scarlet Woman any where near the Provost in all my days at Trinity." And he declares it with the slight foreign accent, which, mingling with a touch of the brogue he got through an Irish strain, makes his speech delightful.

As an instance of the way the man who does not advertise is often allowed to blush unseen it has been noticeable that amid all the freshly roused interest in the U. E. Loyalists there has been no mention of the work done by Mr. Forneri in Adolphustown. Fairly pushed by his Bishop into that parish, which though in the country, is an endowed rectory, Mr. Forneri found little heed being paid to the place where so many of the Loyalists settled and his sensitive soul was greatly troubled over the neglect of the Loyalists' burying-ground. Inaction was impossible and this priest, who looks so absurdly like Roman "father" that the little R. C. boys invariably cap him, talked and wrote and worked, with the result that the beautiful church of St. Alban the Martyr, full of memorials of the dead, stands near Quinte's shore, overlooking the landing place of those who fled from the flag of Revolution to the flag of Liberty; and the churchyard, with its monuments, shows signs of reverent care.

Yorkshire's Chimney.

Halifax has a famous mill chimney, built by a gentleman keenly interested in architecture. It was a Mr. Wainhouse who built this huge stone octagon chimney and provided it with a handsome stone top. A staircase twined round the shaft and inside the stone tower, and came out on a balcony at the top. Above the balcony a colonnade supported a massive domed top. The chimney was never used, for Mr. Wainhouse sold his works before it was completed. This Octagon Tower stands on the edge of the Calder Valley, and is a striking landmark for miles.

West Riding folk called it "Wainhouse's Folly." They could not understand anyone spending money to make a mill chimney handsome. Mr. Wainhouse also spent a huge amount in adding to his cottage property handsome railings, good porches, and well-designed chimneys. One row of humble houses has a gallery, towers, and bridges worthy of a college. The Octagon Tower is considered by some judges to be the finest piece of architecture in the town.

Wonderful Feat of Navigation.

A remarkable feat of navigation has been accomplished by Captain Charles Charlton, who sailed the Liverpool ship Harold, a vessel of 1,299 tons, laden with wheat, into Queenstown Harbor a few days ago. Captain Charlton had brought his ship from Australia, a distance of 15,000 miles, without the aid of a single officer. Efforts to find officers at Adelaide, Melbourne, and Sydney all failed, and the captain had no alternative but to set out for England with a crew—all but two of whom are foreigners—ignorant of navigation.

The voyage lasted 108 days. For one period of six weeks the captain did not remove his clothes, and during most of the voyage he could only obtain snatches of sleep in a deck chair on the poop of the ship.

Engagement Popular.

The engagement of Prince Arthur of Connaught and the Duchess of Fife is an extremely popular one in Britain. Both are great favorites with all sections of society. Prince Arthur easily takes the palm as the handsomest member of the Royal Family, with the exception perhaps of his father, the Duke of Connaught, whom he closely resembles. As representative of the King he has played many parts and has made himself persona grata in nearly all the chief capitals of the world.

STAMPEDE TO GLEICHEN!

TOWN AND DISTRICT

Buy it in Gleichen.

Hardwick Bros. riders are now busy rounding-up beef cattle for shipment.

J. T. Johnston, left on Friday for England, expecting to return in April next.

Mrs. B. S. Corey left Monday to accompany Mr. Corey's mother to her home in New Brunswick.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Hill and daughter of Buffalo Hills returned from several days visit to Calgary.

The Fire Brigade will give another of their popular dances in the Opera House the first night of the Stampede—Thursday, Oct. 23rd.

Miss Gibbons, who has been stenographer at the Bank of Commerce for the past three years, left on Tuesday to take a position in Vancouver.

Little Axe, the most enterprising Indian on the Blackfoot reserve states he raised 2000 bushels of potatoes this year and has sold them all at 60 cents per bushel.

Lot Livingston returned Monday night from Skagway where he has been looking after the shipments of cattle to the Yukon made by the Pacific Cold Storage from Gleichen.

Chris. Anderson left Saturday morning for Kolvhorg, Denmark, to spend the winter. He will return in the spring with his wife and family who left here early last spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Mike Brown and Mrs. A. Brown of Namaka took in the sights of Gleichen last Thursday by auto and gave the Call man the first auto ride he ever enjoyed with a chauffeur. The mayor says they combined the whole Brown family of his city.

Miss Davis has opened a dress-making parlor, Crowfoot St., entry via the Telephone Exchange stairway, where she is prepared to meet all the ladies of Gleichen. Miss Davis has also taken over the agency for the Spiroella model from Miss Convey and will be pleased to meet all former customers and others interested.

Indian Farm Instructor Ostrander stated that on Arthur White Elk's farm 15 acres of No. 1 wheat yielded 16 bushels to the acre, by elevator weight. Speaking of the Indians generally he said he believed fully 75 per cent of the crops would prove No. 1, and that so far there were only three farms that did not get No. 1 grade at the elevator.

On Monday night, Oct. 27, the members and visiting brothers of Prairie Lodge No. 44, I.O.O.F. are invited to attend a supper in the Lodge rooms by Noble Grand J. H. Wright after the regular meeting at which special business pertaining to the good of the order will be discussed. Several of the Grand Lodge members of Calgary have agreed to attend and address the meeting. A full attendance is requested.

Douglas Hardwick remarked the other day that the people of Gleichen should go away from home to be able to appreciate their own town. He said he had just completed a trip of several days through Alberta and he was of the opinion that Gleichen was the best town he had seen in every way. The business transacted here was he believed nearly double any town of its size he had visited.

Wm. Walsh, who won third money in the government Standing Grain Competition, states that the 36 acres of this wheat has threshed out 47 bushels to the acre. He states that the wheat is of the Marquis variety and points out that it was obtained from summer fallow, while a field adjoining on fall plowing yielded only 20 bushels to the acre. Mr. Walsh is now thoroughly convinced of the advantages of summer fallow over fall plowing.

PALACE HOTEL EMPLOY ONLY WHITE HELP

Brosseau Bros., the enterprising proprietors of the Palace Hotel, have made another improvement to their business and one that will be appreciated by all their patrons. They now employ only white help in every department, and have dispensed with all their Chinese and Japanese servants. It is something they have long desired to accomplish, but as everyone knows, it is a most difficult thing in the west to obtain good white help for this class of work. However, at last they have secured a full staff of capable white workers and intend in future to employ only white chefs.

MORE NEWSPAPERS

And now it is said some fellow is foolish enough to think of starting a second a second paper in Bassano. It may be that misery likes company and if that is the object the two will likely have a plenty. Bassano has had a very good paper up to the present and it has certainly been a great booster for that place even to the extreme at times.
